MARS. A crater lake that dried up three billion years ago.
Every stripe in those cliffs was laid down underwater.
Underwater? Then where'd the water go?
That's the question everybody's been asking for fifty years.

Just a sliver from the edge. We don't break anything we can't put back.
WHRRRRR
No activity. A very boring rock.
SAMPLE 07.
CARBONATE.
LAYERED.
NO ACTIVITY.
A boring rock that might be the most important fossil in history.

Huh. That's a big hollow under us.
Like a basement?
